

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a process for the preparation of luminescent textile fibres characterized in that the fibres are treated with a composition comprising

- (a) one or more luminescent lanthanide chelates containing three organic anionic ligands having at least one UV absorbing group and
- (b) one or more solvents.